Weak performance continued in Q2 and led to a profit warning

Preliminary results for Q2 fell short of our estimates. More importantly, in view of the weak performance for two consecutive quarters and the unlikely economy recovery in H2, GESCO has downgraded its 2024e guidance. In addition to macroeconomic headwinds, the ongoing pricing pressure accelerates the operational downward trend. However, in view of the -24% ytd share price performance we consider the current headwinds as priced in. With a FY 2025e P/E of 8.3x we view the shares as attractively valued in historical comparison. Following our estimate reductions, we derive a new TP (based on DCF and peer group) of EUR 18.5 (prev. EUR 27.0). We continue to rate the shares a Buy.

Preliminary Q2 figures miss our expectations

GESCO reported weak preliminary results for Q2. Revenues decreased by c.11% yoy to EUR 128.5m, which fell short of our expectation of EUR 144.1m. The main reasons for the weak Q2 performance are the challenging economic environment, the corresponding lower customer demand, and project postponements. Impacted by the lower topline development and the decreasing prices at its subsidiary Doerrenberg, Q2 EBIT declined significantly by c.77% to EUR 2.6m (PASe: EUR 9m), the lowest quarterly level since the pandemic.

Reduced guidance and our estimates

As the expected economy rebound, particularly in the relevant sectors to GESCO, is not likely to be seen in H2 2024, the company revised its guidance. The new FY 2024e guidance calls for revenues of EUR 520m-540m (prev. EUR 570m-590m) and a net income after minorities of EUR 8m-12m (prev. EUR 26m-28m). In order to reach the lower end of its revenue guidance range, GESCO has to generate H2 revenues of approximately EUR 267m, compared to H2 2023 revenues of EUR 269m, where pricing pressure and subdued customer demand had already its impacts to certain amount. As a precaution, we set ourselves at the lower end of the guidance ranges. We now forecast for FY 2024e revenues of EUR 516m (prev. EUR 570m) and net income estimate of EUR 7.9m (prev. EUR 25.7m).
